EDITORIAL FLINGS

Jokesmiths have to earn their salt. With this you'll all agree. Surely it is not their fault, There's no new jokes, you see.

Up to date the advertisements in the local papers of "two pants suits sales" are addressed to the Paris men only, because the knickerbocker girls have not yet begun to think in terms strict economy.

We saw a gypsy caravan near Paris the other night, camping by the roadside. And now we think the fellow who sang of his "little gypsy sweetheart" must have had a perverted sense of sweethearts.

George Washington was first in peace, First in war, by jing, We'll bet you, though, he wasn't first In a straw hat every spring.

Said a pretty Paris girl, recently: "Some Paris fellows come to the dances smelling like they had been bottled in the perfume department of a ten cent store, while others smell like they had been in the bottling room of a distillery." Possible this could happen in Paris, Kentucky?

If many of the New York city newspapers know as little about New York as they do about Kentucky, their readers are surely deserving of pity. It is amusing to read some of their descriptions of life in Kentucky. The native Kentuckians in New York certainly ought to protest these ridiculous caricatures of our good old State, as printed in some of the New York newspapers.

Three Paris newspaper men and two insurance men sat in front of a certain Paris business house Sunday night for about an hour, and in that time they counted thirty-three instances of president violation of the city ordinances regarding automobile and traffic regulations. They ranged all the way from parking on the wrong side of the street to autos without lights of any kind. What's an ordinance as between autoists?

Can't understand why some of the highbrows are raising such a hullabaloo about John Hancock, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, being labelled in some of the text books as a "smugler." In these piping days of the Eighteenth Amendment are not some of our very best people smugglers, rum-runners, and, whether they choose to admit it or not, receivers of stolen goods? True, they engage in these practices, not for unholty profit, but only for unholty gratification, but isn't that about all the difference there is?

There's a wise little chap in our little neighbor, Millersburg. This little fellow, Eddie Reynolds, a grandson of Ed. Ingels, has been in the habit of going to a certain refreshment stand in Millersburg each night, where several kiddies about his age meet, under the club name of "The Stool Pigeons." This young fellow was told he must become a member of the club, and that the initiation fee would be one dollar. He hastened to grandpa Ingels, with a request for a dollar, explaining his growing need. Mr. Ingels, said, in a joking way, "Why, son, I've got no dollar to give you." "Well, granddaddy," blurted the boy, "you don't want me to be a squab, then, do you?" He is now a member in good standing.

Come into the garden, Maude, Our crop will bring us cash. Corn and beans we lately sowed Are growing succotash.

This was the forest primeval The whispering pines and hemlocks Are all stirred up by radio And anybody can listen in.

"Uncle John" Shell, aged 136, reputed to be the world's oldest man, up to the time of his death, was an inveterate user of tobacco. Now, the reformers can calculate how long he would have lived if he had been an abstainer.

The love of a boy for his dog is the subject of comment always. But the acid test of man's or woman's love of a dog is made when the dog has flees that are just as happy upon the master or mistress as they are upon the dog.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva's prediction that the world will come to an end by 1925 may be based on the idea that by then labor will have gotten the wages it deems fit and capital return its demands, and thereafter labor and capital will be in Heaven, and the unorganized class will remain where they've been since 1917.

The press is not deliberately salacious, but sometimes the headlines does go astray in the effort to put pep into his words. For example, a woman invalid forty years old escaped from her bed and many newspapers published the item under the heading: "Girl In Her Nightie Wanders From Home."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, sailing for home, says he will pay America another visit next year. The American visit must have paid Sir Arthur, but at the moment he sailed the American people were more interested in blackberry cobbler and the forthcoming watermelon and cantaloupe crop than in the theory that it is possible to hold communion with the spirits of the departed.

A Paris man who has recently been to Atlantic City says there is a gilded hotel there where you pay $2.50 for a honeydew melon with which to begin your breakfast. A man with $17.50 should be able to satisfy his hunger at that hotel, but what hope has he of satisfying himself that he will not be sent to the psychopathic ward for observation before time for luncheon?

A certain Paris newspaper man recently was regaled with a most sensational story from a rural friend and was seeking to get it verified. He asked: "Is this fellow who gave you the account of this happening regarded as a truthful man?" "Well," replied the farmer, "I ain't saying he ain't altogether truthful, but what happened to Ananias and Saphira ain't never affected him none, as yet."

"BUSINESS REVIEW" REVIEWS BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The Monthly Business Review, published at Cleveland, under auspices of the Fourth Federal Reserve District, in the July number, gives the following from some of its correspondents regarding the business outlook, which will be interesting reading to our people: "In general, the tone of replies from our correspondents is not as assuring as it was thirty days ago. Several disturbing under-currents are appearing. In certain lines business is developing a pace that will be exceedingly difficult to maintain. There is a feeling growing among our correspondents that, unless the present momentum in certain lines is checked, business will with difficulty return to a sound and substantial basis. It seems hardly possible that we will be unmindful of the economic lesson so recently learned.

"One correspondent believes, 'It is possible that business has resumed too quickly to squeeze out the uneconomical methods of doing business and, while we are all anxious, of course, to see business come back as quickly as possible, there may be such a thing that it is coming back on a more unsound basis than would be advisable.'

"From Kentucky comes this report: 'I must say that I regret to see a tendency toward advance in the price of the necessities of life. A broker who handles a very large amount of merchandise told me only recently that his sales had been enormous in anticipation of a rise in the price of sugar, meats, canned vegetables, and fruits. Perhaps these advances will halt business to some extent, at least.'

"As yet, there is nothing alarming in the situation, but there are certain tendencies which will bear careful watching. First, there is a tendency in certain industries for increased cost of production to parallel increased production."

Mexico is planning the construction of 6,000 kilometers or 4,167 miles of improved roads for the use of automobiles and motor trucks.

HERE'S LATEST AND MOST POPULAR DISH

Famous among the epicurian dishes of the southwest is Slang Jang, which was perfected by Mrs. J. R. Ransone, Jr., Claiborne, Tex. It is neither liquid, salad or chop suey, but a combination, with a dash of Mexican piquancy and sufficient relish to satisfy a healthy appetite. Slang Jang has been served by Mrs. Ransone, as hostess, at her home and on gala occasions throughout Texas, to thousands of visitors from far parts of the world, who were in Texas either on newspaper business, or as guests of Texas newspaper men. Mrs. Ransone for years, while her husband was busy with politics and business, conducted his newspaper, the Cleburne Enterprise. As its active head she entertained both in Cleburne and at frequent conventions, for years. The qualities of Slang Jang and its recipe are thus described by Mrs. Ransone:

"It is a most appetizing liquid 'eat,' suiting all tastes. Those who sample it always call for 'more.' 'The beauty of Slang Jang' is that though it was originally accompanied by the fluid that made Milwaukee famous, it is just as good with coffee in the winter, or cold drinks in summer.

"It is a square meal, which will put so much pep into a person that he will feel he has sipped from the fountain of youth; for what one ingredient fails to give, another frequently furnishes.

"It is a boon to the housewife, who sees a motor full of guests approaching, and knows the spring pullets are too young for the skillet; or for Sunday night supper when there is no maid; or on a hot summer day when a bunch of fellows drop in on a bachelor friend. It requires no cooking whatever. The youngest child in the family can sling it together, but it takes a bit of practice to season it to a nicety.

"Here are the requirements: A polished or a deal table centerpiece for large cutglass bowl, napkins, spoons, a block of ice in the bowl. On the serving table, mix two cans of rosy tomatoes cut in pieces, two cans of cove oysters, chopped up; a dash of pepper sauce, a dozen crumbled crackers, small finely chopped onion, a dessert spoon of vinegar, thinly cut bits of school girl pickle, sprinkled with tobacco, stir lightly; pour over ice and serve in three minutes. Serve in soup bowls with crisp crackers."

CORROBORATION

Of Interest to Paris Readers

For months Paris citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, by Paris residents. Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Paris reader.

Mrs. John Mastin, 1439 High St., Paris, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. I had a dull aching across the small of my back and my kidneys acted irregularly. The use of Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of these complaints and I have faith enough in them that should I ever need a kidney remedy again I would certainly use Doan's Kidney Pills."

Mrs. Mastin gave the above statement November 9, 1916, and on November 13, 1920, she added: "I still have the same good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills as when I endorsed them before. I use them occasionally when I require a kidney tonic and they never fail to do me good."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Mastin had. Foster-McBarn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

CITIZENS' MILITARY TRAINING CAMP ASSURED

Funds for holding the citizens' military training camp at Camp Knox August 1 to September 1, have been assured by the army appropriation act just passed by Congress, $1,800,000 having been provided for these camps throughout the United States, according to advice received from Major General George W. Read, corps area commander.

Of this amount $166,500 will be allotted Camp Knox, $336,905 being reserved at fifth corps area headquarters for preparation of the 1943 camps after the present summer training for this year is over and for contingencies. It is stated in act that none of the money appropriated shall be utilized for the training of any person over 27 years of age, except those who have received training within the fiscal year 1922 and except veterans of the world war who may be accepted if not over 35 years of age.

Conscience Not Emphatic Enough. "Do voice of conscience ain't loud enough for most men," said Uncle Sam. "Dey needs an alarm clock."

THIS REFORMER NEEDED "HOUSE CLEANING"

State troopers raided the home of a reformer in Lincoln Park, at Detroit, Mich. The troopers found, they say, 15 gallons of home-made dandelion wine in the cellar. Ira Griffin admitted he had made the wine, it is alleged. He stood mute when arraigned. Griffin is an earnest member of the Lincoln Park Betterment Association, which had urged a cleanup of illicit "hooch" makers.
